John L. Fagan, Ph.D., R.P.A.

President, Senior Archaeologist and Lithic Technology Specialist

John L. Fagan, co-founder/co-owner of AINW, has over 48 years of experience in archaeology of the Pacific Northwest. Attended the Don Crabtree Flintknapping Fieldschool in 1973, and attended the Washington State University Flintknapping Fieldschool in 1983.

Teaching Experience:

Between 1972 and 2010, Dr. Fagan taught over 45 lithic technology workshops for federal and state agencies and tribes in Oregon, California, Nevada, and Arizona. Several classes were taught with Terry Ozbun and Dan Stueber, including: a one-day Lithic Technology Workshop for professional archaeologists sponsored by the Association of Oregon Archaeologists in 2010, and week-long, intensive lithic technology workshops for federal agency archaeologists and tribes in Arizona, California, and Oregon in 1995 (Introduction); 1997 (Introduction); 1998 (Ground Stone Technology); 1999 (Advanced); 2005 (Introduction); and 2010 (Introduction).
